

Blackout Information & Calendar

Recognizing that the performance and rehearsal requirements of studio programs at LaGuardia Arts may impinge the time students can devote to academic work, we have established a "blackout" policy. A blackout day is one which students are excused from attending classes in order to prepare for an upcoming performance or exhibition. Students who receive an attendance letter and were on a "blackout" day should disregard the letter. Students will be marked absent, but the absence will be excused in the teacher's records. However, school records will still show an absence. For preview assembly performances, students are excused from class only for the periods specified for that day.

Notes:

- A blackout day is a day when students are excused from attending classes in order to prepare for an upcoming performance. Teachers will be provided with a list of participating students in advance.
- Preview assemblies will be scheduled during blackout days.
- Students who participate in blackout days are allowed to make up all missed work.
